Alison on Currency.

At the commencement of Chapter XXXV of volume 7 of Sir Archibald Alison's History of Europe, may be found the following interesting disquisition on currency. It will be seen that the legal tender notes of this country answer to the domestic currency proposed by the distinguished historian. Our own experience during the Rebellion also demonstrates the necessity and usefulness of such a domestic currency which, independent of the fluctuations or migrations of gold, enabled the country to carry on a gigantic war, and at the same time increase its prosperity with a most remarkable rapidity.

But it is vital to the success of the system that the issues of this currency be kept within bounds; and in this philosophic disquisition of the eminent historian we may find the folly of that party in our country which proposes to increase the volume of currency to an enormous amount under pretense of paying the debt, exposed and rebuked.

As the extract is from the pen of an accurate observer and profound philosopher, who has left, in his written works, a monument behind him not less enduring than that of England's [illegible] men of the present century, it is worthy of attentive perusal:

Unobserved amidst the strife of parties, unmarked by political leaders, unknown to the dominant multitude, one cause of paramount importance and irresistible force was, during the forty years' peace, incessantly acting on the British Empire. THE MUTATIONS OF THE CURRENCY, anticipated before 1819, experienced since that period, furnish the key to all the variations in social happiness which were experienced during that eventful period. They explain the alternations of feverish and short-lived prosperity, and exhausting and long-continued [illegible], which invariably [illegible]; they account for the vast political changes which entered the entire alteration in the balance of internal power, and the tendency of foreign and commercial policy which occurred during their continuance. Without a constant reference to this paramount and irresistible cause, all attempts to explain the political history of Great Britain during this long period, will prove nugatory, and the most important lessons to be derived from contemporary history will be lost.

It has been already explained, that as the great objects of a currency are to be adequate and retainable so the great desideratum which can be committed in regard to the circulating medium are to establish it on a [illegible] which is either too narrow or [illegible]. As gold has, from the earliest times, been considered as the most precious of metals, and, on that account, been the great medium of payment and [illegible] of commerce among mankind so, it [illegible] at first sight, the wisest course to establish the currency on that basis, [illegible] then it rests on a foundation which is not, in the [illegible] of a changing or ever [illegible], but [illegible]. If any earthly thing is entitled to that appellation in the changing concerns of [illegible], Gold, no doubt, in some political strife, does change value, often to a very considerable [illegible], but it does so, from its being universally [illegible], much less so than any other commodity; and, therefore, money [illegible] on it as a [illegible] more [illegible] than any other which can be [illegible]. Such were the principles on which the monetary system of Great Britain, since 1819, have been [illegible], which, beyond the [illegible] of £14,000,000 [illegible] by the Bank of England, and [illegible] amount by the private banks in the [illegible], required the whole [illegible] to be [illegible], and liable to be exported or [illegible] as the supplies of that metal are abundant or scanty. And these [illegible] are, in [illegible], so plausible, and the evils of an [illegible] of paper had been so forcibly illustrated by the French assignats, that it is not surprising that they [illegible] more than one [illegible] nation entirely govern the monetary policy of the Empire.

Reflection had, however, in the very outset, revealed to a few [illegible] what experience [illegible] have now taught [illegible] to the most inconsiderate of mankind, that these views are [illegible], and, as applied [illegible] home, of the most dangerous tendency. For the purposes of foreign transactions, indeed, whether of nations or individuals, it is indispensable to have a currency [illegible] either of the precious metals or of paper, convertible on demand into them, [illegible] none other will pass current in foreign [illegible]. But with regard to the currency which is to be retained at home and conduct the commerce of men in internal transactions, the requirement is just the [illegible]. The [illegible] of such a currency is to be adequate and durable, neither liable to be unduly [illegible] nor extensively withdrawn at [illegible]. Unless this is the case, money will be plentiful on some occasions, and encourage speculation by the rise of [illegible], and the facility of getting it, and scarce on others, and so discourage enterprise, from the withdrawal of the circulating medium and [illegible] fall of prices. The [illegible] social evils which can inflict an industrious and commercial community are [illegible] by [illegible] for internal transactions which is liable to fluctuation, and are [illegible] of being avoided by one which is not liable to change.

The very circumstance which renders gold and silver the best possible foundation for the currency which is to [illegible] the [illegible] of a country, renders it the worse for that which is to sustain its domestic industry. The reason is obvious: being always so much in request, they are the first to go away. Being the most coveted and precious of articles, they are universally acceptable and are more readily received than manufactures or other merchandise in payment of foreign importations, or in liquidation of foreign loans. Hence, whenever a great importation of foreign produce takes place into such a nation, or any adventitious [illegible] a great export of the precious metals, the currency, and with it the credit of the State, is shaken to its foundation and undertakings the most necessary are suspended from want of the [illegible] them on. If the basis could be permanently retained at home, it would all be well; but if it cannot, better to rest it on something of less intrinsic worth, and less coveted in foreign lands. * * * It is the peculiar evil of a system of currency mainly dependent on the retention of gold, that it invariably tends to foster and inflame speculation when the precious metals are plentiful, and proportionably check and prostrate it when they are withdrawn. When, from any external cause, or the exports becoming nearly equal to the imports by the effect of long-continued and general suffering, gold has become plentiful in the coffers of the bank, and, consequently, its own issues, and those of all other banks, have become fearless and abundant, prices rise, speculation flourishes, great undertakings are commenced; and general prosperity for a brief season prevails. But in this very prosperity, acting on a system of currency based on the retention of the precious metals, are involved the seeds of certain and speedy disaster. The whole community, and [illegible] the working classes, having, by the retention of the currency, been placed in a position, for a time, of comparative affluence and prosperity, the consumption of every species of merchandise of course increases in a similar proportion, and much beyond what, from the want of a similar cause, takes place at the same time in foreign States. Thence a great and growing balance of imports over exports arises. * * * This immense balance of course must be chiefly paid in cash or bills convertible into it, the only universally received medium of exchange among nations. Thence a rapid contraction of the currency to check the dreaded drain on the banks for gold, a serious fall of prices, a stoppage of mercantile discounts, a rise of interest, a universal shake of credit, and suspension of enterprises of every sort, agricultural, manufacturing and commercial.

This prosperity, under a system of currency mainly dependent upon the retention of gold, leads to alternations of prosperity and suffering as inevitably as night succeeds day and day night, and that altogether irrespective of drains of gold from extraneous causes, such as war loans, extensive importations of grain, owing to bad harvests, or the like, which necessarily and still more immediately, lead to a ruinous contraction of the currency, and consequently stoppage of credit, and general suffering.

The way, and the only way, to avoid this is perfectly simple, although such is the combined influence of the clear [illegible] of the subject by a few interested parties on the one hand, and the benighted ignorance of it by the vast majority of the sufferers under it on the other, that an entire generation was required to be [illegible], or go to their graves, before the subject was generally understood. This is to have two currencies in every commercial community; the one convertible on demand into the precious metals, for [illegible] conducting its foreign transactions; the other not so convertible, to sustain its domestic industry. The latter currency should be [illegible] in proportion to the abstraction of the gold, which is the foundation of the first, for it is merely serviceable in supplying the vacuum occasioned by the periodical abstraction of the former. Without doubt this domestic inconvertible [illegible] must not be issued in too large quantities; care must be taken that it does not turn into assignats, and extinguish capital by lowering the value of the currency in which it may be discharged. But from the abuses of a system no argument can be drawn against its use. Because many drunkards perish by the [illegible] use of ardent spirits, it does not follow that they are to be altogether proscribed [illegible], because the [illegible] from [illegible] themselves with whatever [illegible], it does not follow that [illegible] is to be proclaimed.

It is [illegible] and has been [illegible] with much [illegible] by [illegible] acknowledged [illegible] that the lasting relief would be [illegible] by the [illegible] ment of a double [illegible], partly [illegible] and partly not, [illegible] the inevitable effect of the issue would immediately be to draw the gold out of the country, and then either the [illegible] of currency which was [illegible] complained of would still be felt, or the [illegible] would be wholly sent abroad, and the currency would [illegible] on [illegible], as not convertible only. If £[illegible] of inconvertible notes are [illegible], it is said £5,000,000 of [illegible] will be [illegible], and the nation will [illegible] with [illegible]. The only [illegible] is the [illegible] a contraction of [illegible] the gold by [illegible] fall of prices. The answer to this [illegible] which is so [illegible], and has been so ably [illegible] that it has carried with it an [illegible] this [illegible], and the [illegible] involved in [illegible].

In the first place, if the gold can only be retained, when [illegible] by [illegible], and so lowering the [illegible] of industry [illegible]. Gold is a very [illegible], but it is not worth [illegible] the ruin of the country. [illegible] one of the [illegible] which [illegible] five or six [illegible] during the last [illegible] hundred to a [illegible] have been destroyed [illegible] the [illegible] of gold worth purchasing at such a [illegible]? What is the use of it if it can only be [illegible] by [illegible] the capitalist rich and all other [illegible] poor? In the next place, the [illegible] of Great Britain, during the French war, [illegible] by the [illegible] of an [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] in [illegible] and [illegible] 1810 and 1815, when [illegible] was selling [illegible] the [illegible] plenty, the [illegible] felt by the half-on party of the gold [illegible] for any length of time [illegible] gold leave the [illegible] price ab[illegible] this is very [illegible] in [illegible] foreign [illegible] great, [illegible] of [illegible] has [illegible], or a large [illegible] [illegible] ty. Which [illegible] arising from [illegible] foreign [illegible], gold will return to this [illegible] as [illegible] round the [illegible].

To put this [illegible] it is [illegible] by Gibbon [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] to deal in notes [illegible] the King's prerogative, and [illegible] of the [illegible] such a system, [illegible] tion which is [illegible] and [illegible] should all be [illegible] by [illegible] mint only, and the [illegible] as it is for three per cent. Nothing [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] and to confine it within the [illegible] one way of limiting it [illegible] giving it [illegible] would be to limit it in the [illegible] the amount of [illegible] by the nation. Another, and a still [illegible] sioners, for every [illegible] from the Bank [illegible] 000,000, to [illegible] million of the inconvertible notes, to be drawn in by [illegible] in payment of taxes without [illegible] the gold comes back. It belongs to [illegible] to devise the details of such a system; but if honestly set about by men of [illegible], nothing would be more easy of [illegible]. And it may safely be affirmed, that if [illegible] is not made, the nation will continue to [illegible] every four or five years by [illegible] of calamity, and [illegible] will [illegible] all the fruits of [illegible] prosperity—like the unfortunate culprits who, under the [illegible] system of military [illegible], when sentenced to one [illegible] or fifteen hundred lashes, were brought out [illegible] their punishment by [illegible] as soon as their wounds had been healed in the [illegible].

THOMAS HOOD.—The British Quarterly [illegible] an article on Hood by one who [illegible] to the same literary Club forty [illegible] years ago. He thus alludes to his modesty [illegible]:

While thus advancing in his career as a writer of both verse and prose, of no ordinary [illegible], Thomas Hood was still as simple in [illegible] and [illegible] as ever. [illegible] Soon after "Lycus" had appeared, he called in with the usual pocket-book, well filled with notes and specimens of copy from [illegible] of the contributors to the [illegible] and while some [illegible] were examining [illegible] the writer took up a little note from Barry Cornwall, addressed to "Dear Lycus;" and "Who is Lycus?" [illegible]; "Myself," was the quiet reply. "You wrote 'Lycus!' why it has been assigned to Coleridge [illegible]" "It has; but that has been indeed [illegible], for I wrote it. You see, he has [illegible] very kind" (alluding to Barry Cornwall's note) "in his [illegible]." Thus simply, almost humbly, did Thomas Hood receive [illegible] that would have turned the heads of most young poets not half so gifted as he.

THE SUFFRAGE.—The New York Times offers the following practical comment on the suffrage question: "The people have, it is true, in Ohio refused to admit [illegible] to the suffrage on equal terms with the whites; but there are practical reasons for allowing [illegible] to vote in the South, which do not prevail in the North, and in spite of the loud demands made in the name of universal freedom and equal justice by the apostles of "progress," practical considerations have, and always will have, much more weight than abstract principles in deciding the result of an election. The negroes in the South are too numerous to be subjected to the arbitrary control of the whites. Their rights of person and of property demand protection, and in this country we recognize no mode of protection by Government, except by participation in it. No community could long exist in peace where half the people, more or less, depend wholly on the other half for the enjoyment of their rights.

Col. Austin, of Mississippi, [illegible] in Representatives' Hall of the [illegible] Capitol, on the 1st of November, and [illegible] presented South [illegible] when he said that the [illegible] in the country was the [illegible] of all whites and the re-enslavement of all blacks.

SENATORIAL MATTERS.

The question who shall be elected United States Senator to take the place of Conness on the 4th of March, 1869, is the [illegible] in Democratic circles. The [illegible] yesterday were Hoge, Casserly, [illegible] and [illegible] with apparent [illegible] of [illegible] we have [illegible] sharp contest between the two [illegible], and manifestations of a little [illegible] among their friends. THURSDAY MORNING, DEC 12 1867

The State of Montana

The Montana papers are discussing the question of organizing that Territory into a State and asking its admission into the Union. The subject is looked at by the press from different points of view, and we have arguments in favor of and against the measure The Democrat warmly supports the proposition, while the Post, with better judgment, as we think, is of opinion that Montana should remain under national tutelage for a considerable time longer The paper first named is evidently in favor of State organization as a party [illegible]. In that Territory, as in most others, there is a lot of played-out politicians, fugitives from other parts of the country, who want an opportunity to obtain offices and whose supreme ambition is to [illegible] some political leaders in such a situation. A mistake was made in the admission of Nevada, which ought not to be repeated. The movement was engineered by politicians and a Territory, which ought to have remained for years yet in that condition was elevated into a State. Still, the [illegible] of Nevada [illegible] of an [illegible] which would not be urged now for the admission of Montana or Colorado. Nevada, when admitted, was in a pros[illegible], and it was very generally supposed that her growth would be rapid and permanent. Time has dispelled this [illegible], and shown the impropriety of making [illegible] of hasty growth, whose [illegible] and future prospects are [illegible] on the [illegible] of gold and [illegible] Montana may have the elements of [illegible]; but their development has, as yet, hardly begun. Her population is not fixed; her wealth, apart from what the mines are [illegible], is small and unstable, and it [illegible] be a [illegible] mistake for her to assume the [illegible] and expense of a State government, [illegible] the subject is to [illegible] in the easy [illegible] the bill [illegible] that for once the vote [illegible] was [illegible] by him with good [illegible] may make Colorado [illegible] at 65,000, the Post is sure that [illegible] The [illegible] fact by the [illegible] only 20,000 inhabitants in [illegible] on which the [illegible] at the rate of [illegible]

[illegible] The following [illegible] state [illegible] the Irish [illegible] that we have [illegible] authority that [illegible] City and [illegible] City [illegible] We give this [illegible] as we are aware, [illegible]

[illegible] which had been [illegible] half [illegible] to [illegible] on the other side." The [illegible] is supposed to have [illegible] himself. The daring act [illegible] were as [illegible] and shadow, or [illegible] has been with those men and [illegible] the king of evil on this earth. The [illegible] the pit [illegible] tyrant there is the savage [illegible]. A witty Frenchman said that "the Turkish empire was a despotism, limited by the bowstring." Of this [illegible] could be quoted than England's rule in Ireland Has it not consisted of [illegible] and [illegible] and injustice, of [illegible] to last? And is not [illegible] to-day? And [illegible] than a million of as [illegible] contains have [illegible] and they will keep [illegible] One a [illegible] that such a thing as trading on equal and impartial terms with foreign nations does not exist in England, and by her present ruling class never was intended to exist For those articles which are absolutely necessary for her own wealth and aggrandisement there is free admission Against all others a protective tariff is leveled, so rapacious and exorbitant in its [illegible] that the introduction of them tends only to enrich the British [illegible] and to impoverish the foreign manufacturer American corn and flour are admitted free, because Saxon stomachs must be filled. American tobacco is taxed and tariffed to the very verge of absolute exclusion, because the admission of it would enrich the people and Government of this country. And this we are coolly told is free trade!

But the whole thing is rotten from the foundation Even with regard to the few articles which they have permitted, for a few years past, to be imported free into their country, the English have already found out that they have committed a grand mistake. Take iron, for instance, and every intelligent person will admit that for this article there will be an hourly increasing demand in all civilized countries. Well, foreign manufacturers—men whose homes and factories, and workshops, are in France and Belgium and North Germany—are at this hour underselling the British iron merchants in their own markets It is a positive fact, they have not only beaten John Bull out of the markets of Spain and Russia, but that they are sending over from Ostend and Rotterdam to London and Liverpool the machinery for English mills, and the locomotives which are to run on English railroads.

Let this go on, and it requires no supernatural penetration to foresee the inevitable issue These nations which protect their native manufactures from ruinous competition and the interests of their honest workers, will inevitably become "the workshops of the world," while those countries and people who are so insane as to adopt the great free trade swindle will, as inevitably, lose their trade and become the homes of poverty and ignorance and crime. Such, if England perseveres in this intensely [illegible] policy, which, satan like, has so woefully over-reached itself, will be her inevitable fate. The process is already in active operation, and even if America and Ireland were [illegible] to fire a shot, or strike a blow, to avenge their wrongs, free trade alone will prove a disease powerful enough to secure England's decay and dissolution.

Some eighteen months ago, Gladstone, who is the great British "medicine man" of the free trade nostrum, was proving by all sorts of abstruse and elaborate arguments that, although coal was going out of England to the European continent at an alarming rate, and although the island was small, and the stock of coal consequently limited, it never could, would or should be exhausted. And all [illegible] was satisfied and said Amen. We think that by this time Gladstone and his bamboozled client, Bull, are beginning to "smell a mice." They are finding out for what purpose so much coal was wanted It was to manufacture iron, so good and cheap and plentiful, that the foreigner can bring it back to the place where he got the coal, and beat the English in their own country. Verily, Bull's chickens [illegible] time [illegible] with a vengeance! [illegible] Mr. Bull, buy your iron, your boilers and [illegible], where you can get them [illegible], in France and Belgium. You can also buy your [illegible] in Prussia, cheaper than you can get it [illegible]. The only drawback will be, that your money will all go out of your [illegible] and out of your country, and it will never [illegible]. Your workmen will be idle and [illegible]; and your manufacturers bankrupts? Grand discovery, this free trade, isn't it, Mr. Bull?

The English [illegible] this [illegible] system on Ireland and [illegible] and Turkey. And it has [illegible]. Are the people of America going to sell [illegible] country to the [illegible] list? [illegible] party. We [illegible], and we know, and so do all [illegible] the [illegible] policy [illegible] just as it was [illegible] policy [illegible] and Jefferson Davis [illegible] in Washington. We [illegible] the Irish workingmen of [illegible] millions [illegible] who will introduce [illegible] free trade? who will make America [illegible] Ireland, [illegible] was? For [illegible] only the victim of the [illegible]. But America, [illegible] on the field of [illegible] will do it again, [illegible] the day [illegible] the free trade swindle of England [illegible] and the [illegible]. That day never [illegible] if you will only do your duty, and that [illegible] the [illegible] of your illustrious [illegible] from [illegible]

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.—The Council met last evening, his Honor, Mayor Chapman, in the Chair. Present Councilmen—Fechheimer, Hallock, Mulkey, Porter and Rosenheim.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, ETC.

A remonstrance was received from A. Myers and others, against the proposed change of grade on Fourth street, between Harrison and Lincoln streets. The remonstrants represent 1,100 feet frontage on Fourth street. Remonstrance referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

A petition was received from L. Gross and others, for the erection of a lamp post at the corner of Washington and Fifth streets. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Fire and Water reported that Messrs [illegible] & Clark, contractors for the construction of two fire cisterns, had completed the work so far as to fill them to ascertain if they hold, and recommending that the sum of $955, ninety per cent. of the contract price be paid the contractors. The report was adopted and a warrant was ordered drawn for the payment of that amount.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE CITY.

The following claims against the city treasury were [illegible]:

J. McHenry, for sundries furnished employees of the Lodge in 1866. After some discussion and explanation, the claim was disallowed.

The claim of N. Northrup for clearing rubbish from junction of Hall and Harrison streets, $4 80, was referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

The bill of Blumauer & Rosenblatt, $70, for rent of [illegible] to December 1st, was ordered paid.

The bill of Jas. Bothwell, Deputy Marshal, for fees for [illegible] of certain parties in the month of November, amounting to $19 70, was referred to the Committee on [illegible] and Police.

The bill of A. B. Brannan, Deputy Marshal, for similar [illegible], $32 30, was [illegible] to the same committee.

The bill of H. M. Hodson for similar services, $18 30 was also referred to the same committee.

The bills of the Oregon Herald for advertising, amounting to $25 50, were ordered paid.

The bill of P. Owens and Thomas Burke for labor on the [illegible], $46 50, was referred to the committee on [illegible] and Public Property.

The bill of J. McHenry for lamps for the City Jail, $6, ordered paid.

Bill of Burton & Harris $12, for stationery for city Treasurer, was ordered paid.

PASSAGE OF ORDINANCES.

An ordinance was introduced making an appropriation of $300 for the purchase of a safe for the use of the Auditor and Clerk, and was read 1st, 2d and 3d times, under a suspension of the rules and passed, by the following vote: Yeas—Messrs. Fechheimer, Hallock, Porter, Rosenheim and Mulkey; nays none.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

On motion of Mr. Hallock, the Committee on Accounts and [illegible], was [illegible] to purchase a safe and have it placed in the Auditor's office.

On motion of Mr. Mulkey, the Auditor was directed to issue alias warrants for the collection of delinquent assessments for the improvement of Front street at the [illegible] of Jefferson street.

Mr. Porter then offered a resolution directing the Street [illegible] to construct surface drainage across Front on the north line of Market street, of sufficient capacity [illegible] off the water coming down Market from the upper part of the city.

Mr. Mulkey opposed the proposition to construct surface [illegible], and thought an underground sewer should [illegible]. He said surface drainage would seriously [illegible] the street.

[illegible] Hallock and Porter advocated surface drainage [illegible] temporary provision against the [illegible] floods of the winter. Several of the members thought the drainage [illegible] be made [illegible] Front further south than [illegible].

After a lengthy [illegible], Mr. Porter agreed to amend [illegible] so as to direct the Street Commissioner to [illegible] surface drainage, but to exercise his discretion [illegible] whether it shall be on the line of Market, Clay or [illegible]. The resolution was adopted.

HOUSES OF ILL-FAME.—A couple of Chinese [illegible] had an examination before Judge Hoffman, yesterday, on the charge of keeping a house of ill-fame. The [illegible] of the Court was reserved till this morning. [illegible] have been several cases of this kind up before the [illegible] within the last year; but as yet no one has been [illegible], for want of proof of [illegible] the charges. [illegible] all cases of this kind, direct proof is very [illegible] to be obtained, as it is in the case of white [illegible]. However, in the [illegible] of China women there is small chance of doing a wrong by convicting, for, there is probably not a half dozen of them in the city who are not prostitutes. [illegible] may be unwilling to swear positively in the courts; but who is [illegible] who does not know what all the Chinese women [illegible] at their windows and beckon [illegible]. The brothels are very [illegible] along [illegible] of the [illegible] of the city, and [illegible] a most [illegible]. They are the cause of [illegible] both [illegible] white men and Chinamen, and it is [illegible] they were all either exiled from the city, [illegible] made to move their filthy [illegible] to less frequented [illegible]. There may be no direct way of doing [illegible] white men can be found who are so lost to [illegible] to rent their buildings to such vermin; but all [illegible], should be used to that end. [illegible] will help; but conviction will do more.

[illegible] ORGANIZATION.—[illegible] J. J. [illegible], J. C. Ainsworth, C. M. Carter, S. G. Reed, [illegible], Wm. Strong and B. Goldsmith of this [illegible] incorporated [illegible] under the [illegible] of [illegible] Branch Railroad Co," with a [illegible] of $25,000,000. The object of the organization is to [illegible] a branch of the Union Pacific railroad starting from some point on that road, [illegible] Idaho and Eastern Oregon, to terminate at some point on the Columbia within the limits of its [illegible] waters. It is the design of the company, as we are informed, to induce the Union Pacific Co to take [illegible] in the road and assist in building it. To this end, [illegible] are [illegible] by which a portion of the stock is [illegible] to the latter company. The principal business [illegible] of the [illegible] Co. is located in Portland. Two or [illegible] of the incorporators have been recently [illegible], but their names are withheld from the public.

[illegible] DISTRICT JUDGE.—Proceedings of Tuesday and Wednesday:

[illegible] et al. vs. [illegible]; motion to [illegible] part of complaint, sustained; demurrer overruled. Wait & Kelly for plaintiffs; Mitchell, Dolph & [illegible] for defendant.

G. W. Stanley vs. C. Ball; motion to strike out part of [illegible], with leave to [illegible] to amend. [illegible], Dolph & [illegible] for plaintiff; Friedenrich for defendant.

[illegible] J. [illegible] vs. Lewis [illegible]; suit for divorce; suit [illegible] at cost of plaintiff, with leave to move to set aside [illegible]. Caples for plaintiff; Stout & Reed for [illegible].

[illegible] Marsh et al. vs. C. S. Silver, administrator of [illegible] of Finice Caruthers; argument on [illegible] to [illegible] heard.

The Court adjourned to 9 A. M. to-day.

[illegible] TO THE [illegible].—The schooner Alaska [illegible] en route to Cascades, yesterday morning, broke down the wire suspended [illegible] the river near Milwaukie. It had been broken down several times before by [illegible] and the [illegible] of repairs being [illegible], the [illegible] last laid down a [illegible] but the line had never been connected with it. [illegible], after the [illegible] by the Alaska, [illegible] here went up and [illegible] the line on [illegible] river with the [illegible]. [illegible] is of the opinion that [illegible] the [illegible] again with their [illegible] will have to turn a lofty somersault or two.

[illegible] WEATHER.—During yesterday and last evening [illegible] the first real, genuine Webfoot [illegible] the [illegible]. The rains descended; the winds [illegible] raged and roared and whistled; the [illegible] and the drains got [illegible] full and running [illegible] navigable in every direction. [illegible], men and other bipeds [illegible] their webs and paddled. Talk about [illegible], yesterday, rollicked in glory.

[illegible] TO THE ASYLUM.—Mr. I. R. Moores, of Salem, [illegible] last evening by the Oregon City boat, having in [illegible] young man named Riley. Procuring a carriage, Mr. Moores took his charge over to the Asylum [illegible] late as it was when he arrived. Riley had lately been at work a few miles above Salem, for a Mr. [illegible]. He was sent to the Asylum by the proper authorities of Marion county.

[illegible].—Gov. Woods and Messrs. J. H. Moores, I. R. M[illegible], T. McF. Patton, and others connected with the Oregon [illegible] Railroad Co. came down yesterday [illegible], on business, as we understand, connected with the [illegible] railroad interests. [illegible] what they [illegible] will probably appear in a day or two. [illegible] calls from all of them.

TO TAX-PAYERS.—It may be interesting to tax-payers to know that the tax rolls are yet open at the Court House, and that taxes can yet be paid without costs. The Sheriff has visited all the precincts and now it is his turn to receive calls at his office. After the 20th inst. the taxes will be collected with costs, according to law, by levying upon and selling personal property.

BAD PROSPECT FOR A STEAMER.—The delay of the Montana at Astoria will probably deprive us of the early arrival of a steamer. It was expected that no steamer would be sent till the Montana could go down and return. The telegraph being down, it cannot be known whether another steamer will be started. The prospect is not good for an immediate arrival.

[illegible] PRODUCE.—Arrived per steamer Alert, from Oregon City yesterday, 17 boxes eggs, 97 gunnies bacon, 20 sks oats, 602 boxes apples, 7 hf bbls cider, 141 [illegible], 80 boxes miscellaneous produce, 82 hf bbls do, 1 bale furs, 1 pkg sacks, 40 slaughtered hogs, 11 bales [illegible] goods, 6 kegs lard, 7 sks fruit, 14 bbls, 24 cases [illegible], 1,200 qr sks flour.

MAN SHOT.—We learn that two or three days since a man [illegible] John East shot and killed a man named Scott at [illegible] Creek, near Umatilla. Scott formerly lived in Polk county. The shooting resulted from the fresh opening of an old feud between the parties. We have not been able to [illegible] the particulars further than that East is still at large.

[illegible] OF [illegible] CORPORATORS.—The corporators of the [illegible] and Humboldt Railroad Co. are re[illegible]

REBEKAH DEGREE MEETING.—A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all members in good standing of the Rebekah Degree, I. O. O. F., residing or temporarily staying in the city or vicinity of Portland, to meet with us at a Rebekah Degree Meeting at the Hall of Hassalo Lodge No. 15, on Thursday evening, the 12th inst., at 7 o'clock P. M., by order of the Committee of Arrangements.

NAVIGATION OF THE TUALATIN RIVER.—We are informed that the P. T. Co.'s steamer designed to navigate the Tualitin river, is now ready to run, but is only waiting for a rise in the river to carry out the drift. The captain got up steam on the boat, Tuesday evening.

HIGH TIDES.—For the last day or two, the tides here have been unusually high—in consequence, as is supposed, of the storm which has prevailed at sea. Tuesday night the tide came up a foot and a half higher than at any time this season.

LIFE INSURANCE.—The object of life insurance is not to prolong life, but to make provision for those who may survive—to leave, in fact, an inheritance. The man of small means, may by an annual small payment secure one, two or three thousand dollars to his surviving wife or children and thus secure them from want. Among the many companies now doing a life insurance business, we know of none whose policies are more safe and advantageous than those of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York; Butler & Heath, Agents for Oregon and the adjoining Territories. To those designing to insure, our advice is to call on the agents of this Company and secure a policy.

FROM MR. PITTOCK.—I have used some of Henley's Royal Balsam in my family, and think it is splendid medicine for children, as well as for grown persons. For coughs and colds I freely recommend it to the public.
H. PITTOCK.

M. DuRell, President. C. W. Moore, Cashier. Collections of Notes and Accounts on the principal places in Idaho Territory promptly attended to. Exchange for Coin or Currency on this Bank can be purchased of Ladd & Tilton, Portland, Oregon.

Protection Engine Company No. 4.—Drill this (Thursday) evening at 7 o'clock. By order of the Foreman. JAS. BENNETT, Sec'y.

Rebekah Meeting.—A meeting of Hassalo Lodge, No. 15, in the degree of Rebekah, will be held at their Hall Thursday evening, Dec. 12, at 7 o'clock, P. M.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU

Is a certain cure for diseases of the BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL, DROPSY, ORGANIC WEAKNESS, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, GENERAL DEBILITY, and all diseases of the URINARY ORGANS, whether existing in MALE OR FEMALE, from whatever cause originating and no matter of HOW LONG STANDING.

Diseases of these organs require the use of a diuretic. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or Insanity may ensue. Our flesh and blood are supported from these sources, and the HEALTH AND HAPPINESS, and that of Posterity, depends upon prompt use of a reliable remedy.

pleasant tonic, and a most agreeable drink. The market is flooded with poisonous compounds; but THESE bitters, made from the purest extracts of valuable roots, barks and herbs, are admirably adapted to the cure of all affections of the Stomach, Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, such as Dyspepsia, Fever Diarrhoea, Loss of Appetite, etc., etc. For sale everywhere.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU and IMPROVED ROSE WASH cures secret and delicate disorders in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience and no exposure. It is pleasant in taste and odor, immediate in its action and free from all injurious properties.

THE PEOPLE have been so much imposed upon by several worthless Sarsaparillas, that we are glad to be able to recommend a preparation which can be depended on as containing the virtues of that invaluable medicine, and is worthy of the public confidence. DOCT. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures when anything can cure the diseases that require an alterative medicine.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU gives health and vigor to the frame and bloom to the pallid cheek. Debility is accompanied by many alarming symptoms, and if no treatment is submitted to, consumption, insanity, or epileptic fits ensue.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS!
A Pure and Powerful Tonic,
Corrective and Alterative, of wonderful efficacy in Diseases of the STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.
PROTECTIVE PROPERTIES.
Prevents Fever and Ague and Bilious Remittent Fevers; Fortifies the System against Miasma and the evil effects of unwholesome water; Invigorates the organs of digestion and the bowels;
Steadies the Nerves and tends to Prolong Life.
REMEDIAL PROPERTIES.
Cures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Sick and Nervous Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation, Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Sea Sickness, Cramps and Spasms, and all complaints of either sex arising from Bodily Weakness, whether inherent in the system or PRODUCED BY SPECIAL CAUSES.

NOTHING THAT IS NOT WHOLESOME, GENIAL, and restorative in its nature, enters into the composition of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind; no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants, with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants.

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated, and the appetite restored by this Tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia, and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs.

Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous Attacks, Lowness of Spirits, and Fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is conclusive, and from both sexes.

As a Genuine Tonic, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of Constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and Debility and Decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them.

Last, but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acrid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day.

[From the Atlantic Magazine for November]

SOUTHEY.

The poet Southey, who is said to have been, perhaps, more continually employed than any other writer of his generation, was habitually an early riser, but he never encroached upon the hours of the night. He gives the following account of his day, as he employed it at the age of 32 "Three pages of history after breakfast (equivalent to five in small quarto printing), then to transcribe and copy for the Press, or to make my selections and biographies, or what else suits my humor, till dinner time From dinner till tea I write letters, read, see the newspaper, and very often indulge in a siesta for sleep agrees with me, and I have a good substantial theory to prove that it must, for, as a man who walks much requires to sit down and rest himself, so does the brain, if it be the part most worked, require repose. Well, after tea I go to poetry, and rewrite copy till I am tired, and then turn to anything else till supper." At the age of 55 his life varied but little from this sketch. When it is said that his breakfast was at 8, after a little reading, his dinner at 4, tea at 6, and supper at 9 30, and that the intervals, except the time regularly devoted to a walk, between 2 and 4, and a short sleep before tea, were occupied in reading and writing, the outline of his day, during those long seasons when he was in full work will have been given After supper when the business of the day seemed to be over, though he generally took a book, he remained with his family, and was ready to enter into conversation, to amuse and be amused. During the several years that he was partially employed upon the life of Dr. Bell, he devoted two hours before breakfast to it in the summer, and as much time as there was daylight for it during the winter months, that it might not interfere with the usual occupations of the day. Of himself at the age of sixty, at a time when he was thus engaged every morning away from his home, he says: "I get out of bed as the clock strikes 6, and shut the house door after me as it strikes 7. After two hours' work, home to breakfast; after which my son engages me till about 10:30, and—when the post brings no letters that interest or trouble me—by 11 I have done with the newspaper, and can then set about what is properly the business of the day. But I am liable to frequent interruptions, so that there are not many mornings in which I can command from two to three unbroken hours at the desk. At 2 I take my daily walk, be the weather what it may, and, when the weather permits, with a book in my hand Dinner at 5; read about half an hour, then take to the sofa with a different book, and after a few pages get my soundest sleep, till summoned to tea at 6. My best time during the winter is by candle-light; twilight interferes with it a little, and in the season of company I can never count upon an evening's work. Supper at 9:30, after which I read an hour, and then to bed. The greatest part of my miscellaneous work is done in the odds and ends of time."

CAMPBELL.

The poet Campbell, thus describes his labors, when in London, at the age of fifty-five: "I get up at 7, write letters for the Polish Association until 8:30; breakfast, go to the club and read the newspapers till 12. Then I sit down to my study and with many interruptions, do what I can till 4. I then walk round the Park and generally dine, out at 6. Between 9 and 10 I return to [illegible], read a book or write a letter, and go to bed always before 12." "His correspondence," says his biographer, "occupied four hours every morning in French, German and Latin. He could seldom add, with the moderation necessary for his health. Whatever object he once took in hand, he was [illegible] to carry out, and found no rest until it was accomplished." Whatever he wrote during his connection with the New Monthly and the [illegible]. "If a subject was proposed for the end of a month, he seldom gave it a thought until it was no longer possible to delay the task. He would then sit down in the quiet corner of his chambers, or if quiet was not to be found in town, he would start off to [illegible], and there, shut up among the green fields, complete his task. When 62 years old, he says: "I am only six hours out of the twenty-four in bed, I study twelve and walk six. Oranges, exercise and early rising serve to keep me flourishing."

LORD BYRON.

Lord Byron, who used to sit up at night writing "Don Juan," (which he did under the influence of gin and water) rose late in the morning. Leigh Hunt thus describes him: "He breakfasted, [illegible] singing an air, generally out of Rossini, and in a swaggering style, though in a voice at once small and [illegible] took a bath and [illegible], and coming [illegible], was heard, still singing, in the court-yard, out of which the garden ascended at the back of the house. The servants at the same time brought out two or three chairs. We then lounged about or sat and talked. In the course of an hour or two, being an early riser, I used to go to dinner, Lord Byron then stayed a little longer or went up stairs to his books and his couch. When the heat of the day declined, we rode out either on horseback or in a barouche, generally toward the [illegible]. He was [illegible], and kept a firm seat. In the evening I seldom saw him. He retired [illegible] in the Villa [illegible] or with a [illegible], and at night, when I went to bed, he was just thinking of setting to work with his "Don Juan." His favorite reading was history and [illegible]. His favorite authors were Bayle and [illegible]. His favorite recreation was boating. By [illegible] prodigious facility of composition. He was fond of suppers, and in London, after supping at [illegible] heartily, he would go home and throw off sixty or eighty verses, which he would send to press the next morning.

[illegible] GOLDSMITH.

Goldsmith's desultory habits are quite characteristic. Irving says: "It was his custom during the [illegible] time, when [illegible] by a multiplicity of literary jobs, or urged to the accomplishment of some particular task, to take country lodgings a few miles from town, generally on the Harrow or Edgeware road, and bury himself there for weeks and months together. Sometimes he would keep closely confined in his room, at other times he would stroll out along the lanes and hedgerows, and, taking out paper and pencil, note down thoughts to be extended and corrected at home." Though he engaged to board with the family, his meals were generally sent to him in his room, in which he passed the most of his time, negligently dressed, with his shirt collar open, busily engaged in writing. Sometimes, probably when in mood of composition, he would wander into the kitchen without noticing any one, stand musing with his back to the fire, and then hurry off again to his room, no doubt to commit to paper some thought which had struck him. He was subject to fits of wakefulness, and read much in bed; if not disposed to read, he still kept the candle burning; if he wished to extinguish it, and it was out of his reach, he flung his slipper at it, which would be found in the morning near the overturned candlestick, daubed with grease. He is said to have considered four lines of poetry a good day's work.

DOUGLAS JERROLD.

Douglas Jerrold's day of labor may be sketched thus: At 8 o'clock he breakfasts on cold new milk, toast, bacon, watercresses, and, perhaps, strawberries. Then he makes long examination of the papers, cutting out bits of news. The study is a snug room filled with books and pictures; its furniture is of solid oak. There work begins. If it be a comedy he will now and then walk rapidly up and down the room, talking wildly to himself, and laughing as he hits upon a good point. Suddenly the pen will be put down, and, through a little conservatory, without seeing anybody, he will pass out into the garden for a little while, talking to the gardeners, walking, &c. In again, and vehemently to work. The thought has come, and in letters smaller than the type in which they shall be set, it is unrolled along the little blue slips of paper. A crust of bread and a glass of water are brought in, but no word is spoken. The work goes rapidly forward and halts at last suddenly. The pen is dashed aside, a few letters, seldom more than three lines in each, are written and dispatched to the post, and then again into the garden, visits to the horse, cow and fowls, then another long turn around the lawn, and at last a seat with a quaint old volume in the tent under the mulberry tree. Friends come, walks and conversation. A very simple dinner at four. Then a short nap—forty winks—upon the great sofa in the study; another long stroll over the lawn while tea is prepared. Over the tea-table are jokes of all kinds, as at dinner. In the latter years of his life, Jerrold seldom wrote after dinner; and his evenings were usually spent alone in his study, reading, writing letters, &c. Sometimes he would join the family circle for half an hour before going to bed at ten, but his rule was a solitary evening in the study with his books.

CHARLES DICKENS.

Dicken's favorite time for composition is said to be in the morning. Powell, in his Notices of Living Authors of England, says that he writes till about 1 or 2 o'clock, when he lunches, and afterwards takes a walk for a couple of hours; returns to dinner, and gives the evening to his own or a friend's fireside. Sometimes his method of labor is much more intense and unremitting Of his delightful little Christmas book, The Chimes, the author says, in a letter to a friend, that he shut himself up for one month close and tight over it. "All my affections and passions got twined and knotted up in it, and I became as haggard as a murderer long before I wrote 'The End.' When I had done that, like 'The Man of Thessaly,' who, having scratched his eyes out in a quickset hedge, plunged into a bramble-bush to scratch them in again, I fled to Venice to recover the composure I had disturbed " When his imagination begins to outline a new novel, with vague thoughts rife within him, he goes "wandering about at night into the strangest places," he says, "seeking rest and finding none "

BULWER.

Bulwer accomplishes his voluminous productions in about three hours a day usually from 10 until 1, and seldom later, writing all with his own hand. Composition was at first very laborious to him, but he gave himself [illegible] to mastering its difficulties, and is said to have rewritten some of his briefer productions eight or nine times before publication. He now writes very rapidly, averaging, it is said, twenty octavo pages a day He says of himself in a letter to a friend "I literatize away the morning, ride at 3, go to bath at 5, dine at 6, and get through the evening as I best may, sometimes by correcting a proof."

Silence for Peace.

[From the S. F. Chronicle]

Mack J. Leaming, First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the Thirteenth Tennessee Cavalry, the only surviving officer of white troops who participated in defence of Fort Pillow, has written a letter to the New York Times in reply to General Forrest's denial of the alleged atrocities after the surrender of the garrison Lieut Leaming states that he was himself "deliberately shot" after he had surrendered, and that "while lying on the field" he saw a number of wounded men shot, all of which he declares took place "after the fort was in entire possession of the rebels, and when our men had entirely ceased to offer resistance." Lieut. Leaming's testimony is as unnecessary at this day as then. Forrest's denials are futile and nugatory. The matter has been formally and thoroughly investigated by a committee appointed by Congress for that purpose, and the report of that committee is a historical record, which it is idle for the rebel general resting under the accusation to attempt to impeach by his own word. The committee held repeated sessions, examined a multitude of witnesses, visited the scene of the murder, and after exhausting all accessible means of information, made a voluminous report (including a vast amount of testimony) in which they declared that it was clearly proven that men had been killed after the surrender; that sick men fleeing from the hospital were beaten down and murdered; that "many other instances of equally atrocious cruelty might be enumerated;" and that an overwhelming mass of evidence showed that after the surrender of the fort there followed "a scene of cruelty and murder without a parallel in civilized warfare, which needed but the tomahawk and scalping knife to exceed the worst atrocities ever committed by savages." In the present position of our national politics, while all parties profess a sincere desire to see the work of reconstruction go forward as smoothly as possible it would seem to be not merely ungracious and unwise, but [illegible] inconsistent with the genuineness of such professions to manifest a disposition to rake up the fires of animosity by reviving the discussion of such subjects as the massacre of Fort Pillow, or the dark story of the prison pens of Andersonville. Gladly would we dismiss the ghastly themes from the field of journalism and deliver them into the calm and impartial custody of history, so far as this can be done without any sacrifice of truth and principle. We would be willing to throw the pall of silence if not of oblivion over the hideous record, knowing that passionate accusations and bitter reproaches cannot recall the past or avail aught for the benefit either of the living or the dead. Those who have suffered worthily for their country, whether by the slow torture of starvation or by the sudden pang inflicted by the bullet or bayonet, are less to be pitied than their assassins, and we can honor their memories without the tribute of perpetual denunciations. But if there is to be silence as to the past it must be no one sided amnesty. If those who regard rebel chieftains as heroes would have us leave them to the judgment of posterity, they must not themselves be too loud and ostentatious before the general public in their praises. Let them sacrifice to their idols to their hearts' content in their own secret conclaves; but if they seek to pervert the moral sense of the world, and to anticipate the verdict of history, they must be met and confuted. The crafty tactics of white-washing crime, of volubly denouncing thrice-proven facts as partisan misrepresentations, and then when [illegible] comes forward to vindicate the truth, of raising a hypocritical whine about "[illegible] keeping up sectional hatred," etc., are sufficiently familiar, but they cannot be permitted to prevail without a brutal confusion of all moral distinctions that is worse even than perpetual contention. By all means let us have a truce in regard to those disputed questions of fact that produce excitement, and do not affect present practical issues. But let it be an honest truce, and not the muzzling of one party while the other continues in full cry, distorting the truth, making heroes out of criminals and desecrating the memories of the patriot dead. Upon no specious plea for harmony; in compliance with no insidious and insolent remonstrance against "keeping alive old animosities," will we for one, yield an iota to that sinister hardihood that seeks to make falsehood invulnerable in the armor of callous effrontery.

Sea Sickness and Profanity.—Sea sickness is a sad leveler to which the strongest minds succumb, leaving nothing but the desire to touch terra firma again. An eminent dramatic artist, who has recently made a most successful tour in California, returned East by steamer. Scarcely had the ship got out of sight of land before the Thespian was laid by the heels with mal de mer. In the depths of his despair he called for the captain, and, when that worthy arrived, the tragedian gazed at him for a few moments and then asked:

"Ar-r-e you the captain?"

"I have the honor," said the son of Neptune.

"Ver-r-y well, sir, I want you to run this blasted ship ashore. I'll pay you for her, hull, engines and cargo."

The captain smiled and told his unhappy passenger it was impossible.

"Ver-r-y well, sir. Tie her up to a rock, then, and stop this blasted rolling."

Being assured that this was also impossible, the wretched actor retired to his state-room, and lying there [illegible] cursed the sea and all that appertained to it, with oaths both loud and deep. Now, it so happened that the Rev. Mr. Chadband, who had collected a large amount of money in California to [illegible] fine-tooth combs and tracts for the Digger Indians, was on his way East to invest his funds, and occupied the state-room next the actor's. Horrified at the roars of the sick lion, he walked into the state-room just as he let off another volley of anathemas, which extorted a deep groan from Chadband.

"Hello," said the player, "are you sick?"

"Sick at heart, brother," was the response, "to hear you use such language "

"It's a bad habit," said the wretched artist, "but d—n it, sir, here I've been turned inside out for three days, thrown up everything possible, and if I'm sick any longer, curse me if I don't think I shall throw up my engagement in New York. Blast the sea!"

"Don't, my dear sir, curse so. Remember One who was patient under much greater sufferings than yours."

The tragedian rose to his full hight, and running his fingers through his hair, as he chewed his voice for a moment, replied:

"I do remember Him, sir-r-r, and I remember that when he was caught at sea He got out and walked, and I wish I could follow his example, in that respect, at least."

Mr. Chadband concluded that any more missionary effort in that direction would not be very profitable.—Boston Bulletin.

The Sour Lake in Texas.—About sixty miles from Houston, in Texas, in a low wet prairie country, but itself on quite high and dry ground, surrounded by a fine little forest, is a small lake, whose diameter may be counted by rods, the waters of which are so sour that it is almost impossible to drink them. A number of wells have been dug in the immediate vicinity, and the water of those contains iron, alum, magnesia and sulphuric acid.

Notwithstanding the difficulty of reaching the place and the poor accomodations, large numbers of invalids go there from the Southern States to to drink the water of the wells and bathe in the lake, and they experience immediate and remarkable benefit. The effect of the baths is sedative, and persons who have not slept comfortably for weeks, after taking a bath in the lake in the evening enjoy a refreshing night's rest. The water becomes more pleasant to the taste after a few glasses, and may be bottled or put into wooden casks without losing its strength. The soil is so strongly impregnated with the same qualities as the water, that if the mud be dissolved in pure water and a little soda or saleratus put into it, it will foam and effervesce, and will be as sour as lemonade.

Before the war a number of gentlemen were considering plans for building a large hotel at the place; but since then the project has been postponed. A number of gentlemen bought the property of a man who died about twenty five years ago; but according to the laws of Texas a man cannot sell his homestead without the consent of his wife, and a lady of Chicago, claiming to be the former owner's wife, has brought a suit to recover it under that law. The matter is still in litigation.

Fast Day and Thanksgiving

When November came in 1802, came also to Norwood the renowned Thanksgiving Day, the holiday of old New England from its founding The Pilgrims found it written, "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth and weepeth bearing precious seed shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him" This beautiful poetry was translated into the policy of the Pilgrims by establishing a fast day, in March or April, and a day of thanksgiving in November Thus the whole people were to pass through the two gates of the year, Tears and Smiles, and harrow them as holy days, all other profane and misleading festivities—Christmas, New Years, and Saints days without number, being laid aside. Both days, the day of fasting and thanksgiving, were to be esteemed religious days, and so kept On the forenoon of each the people were to assemble in their churches for religious services and a sermon. On these days good ministers were allowed a wider pasture than was befitting the Sabbath day, and were expected to discourse upon public affairs. So that the pulpit had two safety valves, and the ministers and things in general twice a year without danger of being unsettled, on the one side, or, on the other, of exploding from pent-up fire

If anywhere, a fast day ought to flourish in New England. Not that the people were acerb and superstitious, but they derived their tendencies from fathers who had suffered persecutions, and to whom "strong crying and tears" were familiar, and as the religious convictions of its people are deep, and their views of duty stern, one day in three hundred and sixty five for public fasting could not seem unreasonable.

In the beginning it was a day of fasting. The steps of decline are melancholy and instructive. "Nothing should be eaten between the rising and the setting of the sun," would seem a plain rule, but many people refused such rigor, and ate their breakfast with the foresight that it must last till supper, leaving out dinner by way of fasting.

But soon, while breakfast and supper were left as abutments on each side, the span was so long that a pier of crackers and cheese was built up in the middle to carry the fasting safely over. Now all engineers know a crib sunken in a stream, or a pier, is apt to become a point around which a deposit is soon formed, and even islands have thus grown up from a stake driven down or a mere lodgment of brush. And so it was with fast day. Crackers and cheese became an argument. If crackers may be eaten without violation of fact, why not gingerbread? As the court before which these questions were brought often held its sessions in the stomach, the case was decided in favor of gingerbread.

Thus, with lamentable blindness, doughnuts were added, and to doughnuts (with astonishing infatuation) dried smoked beef, though, with a latent sense of the danger, it was shaved exceedingly thin; to dried beef was added cold chicken —small, but young and tender; and to this cold corned beef. A plain apple pie also got foothold. But at this point devotion made a stand against luxury and conquered. The worldliness of eating hot dishes was happily eschewed. Cold victuals often require, and so minister to, the gracious feelings, if partaken of with patience and an uncomplaining spirit.

In the early day fasting was the very spirit of abstinence, then the spirit of moderation in eating, and, finally, the spirit of abundance, making a judicious selection. At first all intelligent creatures fasted. Then servants began to be excused, then delicate women, and then robustious children that ran roaring round the house on fast days as if it were an exceeding Sunday; and, finally, Fasting was itself the only thing that fasted on Fast Day.

Meantime, while the starved Fast Day, like a consumptive moon, grew pale and thin, and wasted away, every year dying, yet clinging tenaciously to life, the well-fed Thanksgiving Day, like a new moon, grew bright and round, and lay upon upon the year's horizon like a joyful pumpkin upon the ridges of a Yankee cornfield; the pumpkin! sign and symbol in the calendar of New England of jovial festivity! And, now, Thanksgiving may be seen any year, in the mellow days of November, round and jolly, with all the air of a fat old English Christmas; while in April, amidst blustering winds and pincing frosts, its defrauded and bankrupt brother, very poor and thin, shambles along, wishing it were dead, among millions of hard hearted people who wish so too. And so self-gratulation flourishes in New England, while humiliation loses popularity every year.—P. ... Beecher's "No. ..."

THE ROYAL BALSAM!

HAS NOW BEEN BEFORE THE PUBLIC FOR A length of time, and wherever used is highly recommended, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used; and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction, but, on the contrary, all are delighted with it and speak in the highest terms of its magical effects. The astonishing efficacy of the ROYAL BALSAM, in curing the diseases for which it is recommended entitles it to the highest rank among the list of medicines, and no family can be without it after once trying it.

☞ Read the following testimonials from some of the most prominent citizens of Oregon:

MIRACULOUS CURE.

Dr Henley—Dear Sir I feel it but a duty to inform you and the public what a miraculous effect your Royal Balsam had on my wife She had been affected with a severe cough for several weeks, which had assumed a dangerous feature, for which many physicians have been trying without any material benefit and all the remedies failed to give her any relief. Without relief was got I feared for the worst, in her present condition. The cough appeared to be worse at night, she could get no rest—when Mr. Randall, of this place, advised me to try your Royal Balsam; all other remedies having failed, I concluded to try it, and I purchased two bottles. Strange to say, by the time I gave her three spoonfuls of the Balsam she got relief, and slept, a thing she had not done for three nights previous. By the time she had taken one bottle the cough was checked. Its effect was truly miraculous, as the cure was effectual hence, I have no hesitation in recommending the Royal Balsam to all who are afflicted, and it appears astonishing to me that medicine of such great merit, and I might say magical effect, is not more in use. My candid opinion is, if persons use it once, they never be without it in the house.

Vancouver, March 1, 1867. H. COCHRAN.

From Wm. Doty.

North Yamhill, July 15, 1867.

Dear Dr. Henley—It is with sincere gratitude I undertake to write to you, what your Royal Balsam has done for me. For the last 12 years I have been [illegible] with a severe cough and what also some of the physicians called the Bronchitis, and have spent a fortune to get cured, trying all the physicians and remedies I could get, to no purpose, Through the influence of my neighbor's (for you have a great name with them here,) I got a bottle of your Royal Balsam. and finding that it relieved me considerable I sent for a half dozen more. And now after one month using it I am perfectly cured. I gained ten pounds within a month and feel quite a different man. I send you this for publication for the benefit of humanity that through my experience others in affliction may be relieved as I have been Yours truly,
WILLIAM DOTY.

From Sophia M. Holman.

Dear Dr Henley—It is my duty to inform you and the public, what a miraculous effect your Royal Balsam had on my children. Two of them had a very bad cough and cold, I got a bottle of the Royal Balsam, and gave them some at bedtime and some in the morning, and that was all that was needed to cure them I was astonished at not hearing them cough again, but so it was. I find if you give it in larger doses it will make the children throw up in an instant, and, I think every mother ought to have a bottle of your Royal Balsam in the house; in case a child should get the croup for which it is a sure remedy, as it acts like magic on children What I have seen and heard from my neighbors about the Royal Balsam I would sooner depend on it than on any prescription from any physician I have lost two children within the last year of the same disease, had I had at the time some of the Royal Balsam I am confident my dear ones would be alive now I shall always recommend it to all my friends, for I consider it a blessing and Godsend to mankind
Yours truly, SOPHIA M. HOLMAN.

From Drs. Bell & Parker.

We have sold a great deal of Medicine since we have been in business, and now have fifteen different kinds of Expectorants for sale But Dr. Henley's Royal Balsam takes the palm from all. In fact, we sell six bottles of Royal Balsam to one of any other kind—and really it seems of no use to keep any other. During our experience we have never seen any medicine that gives the satisfaction the Royal Balsam does, as is proven by the results daily coming in from the country of old Chronic cases, when nothing else would remove the dreadful cough they had I find it is good for Bronchitis and Asthma We acknowledge it is a pleasure to sell medicine that gives such universal satisfaction.
BELL & PARKER,
Druggists, Oregon City.

From W. F. Barber.

Dr Henley—Dear Sir: I had the Asthma for the last four years, so bad that it came near choking me. I tried all the patent medicines recommended for the cure of Asthma without doing me the least good, till I was told to try some of your Royal Balsam, which on several afflicted with the same disease, has performed wonders. I am using it now for a week and strange to say I have not experienced anything since, and I really believe that I am perfectly cured, anyhow I shall never be without a bottle of the Royal Balsam in the house in case of a similar attack, and I have no hesitation in recommending it to all afflicted with the same disease
I am Yours truly.
W. F. BARBER.

From J. H. Morril.

Dear Dr Henley—I think it but justice to you that these few lines should be made known to the public, for there is so much humbug going on in patent medicines and quack nostrums now a days that I had lost all faith in everything in the shape of medicine. I was affected with what is called Bronchitis for the last thirty years, I coughed and wheezed for an hour at a time, I tried some of the best physicians in the Atlantic States and on this coast all to no purpose I could get no relief, and I really thought there was no relief for me in the world I was induced to try a bottle of your Royal Balsam and it had a most remarkable effect on me, and before I had used up four bottles, the cough left me and I can talk as loud as anybody, my wife and neighbors don't know what to make of it My opinion is that if they knew the value of the Royal Balsam there is not a family in the country that would be without it, I think there is not a better medicine in existence for Bronchitis or cough than the Royal Balsam, and I conscientiously recommend to all so afflicted to give it a fair trial
I remain yours, truly,
J H. MORRIL.
